

AKPOLST | INTRODUCTION FOR PATIENTS & FAMILIES

ADVANCE CARE PLANNING IS FOR EVERYONE. POLST IS FOR SERIOUS ILLNESS.

Advance care planning is learning about different types of healthcare decisions that would need to be made if you became seriously ill or injured in the future, and then letting others know—both family and health care providers—your choices for care.

These choices are often put into an advance directive, a legal document that guides medical care in the case of disease or injury when a patient can't speak for themselves.

POLST is for people with advanced, chronic, or end-stage illness and shares your choices for treatment. With the POLST, your choices for care are turned into physician orders to make sure that you only get the treatments that you want.

What is the purpose of the POLST?

If you have a serious health condition, you should consider making decisions about the types of treatment you want before you have a medical emergency.

Your provider may use the POLST to write orders that share your goals for care and what types of life-sustaining treatment you want or do not want.

- POLST is voluntary and optional.
- POLST is a medical order that is required to be honored by all health care professionals in Alaska.
- You can change or void your POLST form at any time.

POLST can help you make decisions about treatment you would want in case of a medical emergency.

- Are you okay going to the hospital?
- Would you rather stay where you are?
- Are you okay going into the intensive care unit and possibly being on a breathing machine?
- Would you want to avoid treatments that may be burdensome if they are unlikely to help you recover?

POLST IS

A PROCESS.

Part of advance care planning, which helps individuals live the best life possible.

A CONVERSATION.

A conversation between an individual, their chosen family, and their healthcare team about their medical condition, potential treatment options, and choices for care.

A FORM.

A medical order form that travels with a patient (called a POLST form).

AKPOLST | INTRODUCTION FOR PATIENTS & FAMILIES

You decide what fits you best.

Based on the conversation with your provider, they will take the decisions you've made about your treatment wishes and turn those into medical orders by filling out a POLST form.

A Physician, Advance Practice Registered Nurse (APRN), or a Physician Assistant (PA) must sign the form for it to become a medical order.

How do I make sure these medical orders are honored?

The completed POLST is a medical order form that stays with you if you are moved between care settings. It can be honored in your home, in long-term care facilities, and if you are admitted to a hospital.

If you live at home, you should keep the POLST in a place where it can be easily found (e.g., on the front of the refrigerator.) It should also be kept in your medical chart by your primary care provider and members of your health care team. Your surrogate/healthcare decision-maker should also have a copy.

All copies of the POLST are valid, including digital (e.g., a picture of your POLST on your phone.)

Learn More

You or your health care provider can download the POLST form and get more information about POLST in Alaska at www.akpolst.org.

Advance Care Planning Resources:

Alaska Native Tribal Health Consortium
Advance Care Planning Resources
anthc.org

Providence Institute for Human Caring instituteforhumancaring.org

Alaska Advance Health Care Directive
<https://dhss.alaska.gov/dph/Director/Documents/advancedirective.pdf>

Organizations that endorse the use of POLST in Alaska:

- State of Alaska, Department of Health & Social Services •
- Alaska Hospital & Healthcare Association (AHHA) • Alaska State Medical Association
- Alaska Hospice & Palliative Nurse Association • National POLST